

Pro-Ject Pre Box RS - 2x Amp Box RS Mono

SCALE:
The units appear much bigger on photos than they are in real life. They are in fact only about half the size of a shoebox. They are well and elegant made and reduced on usability.

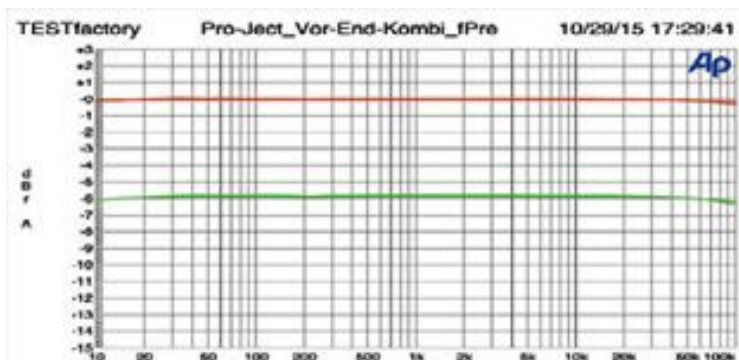

Pro-Ject puts an ECC88 tube in the pre-puffer-stage. After that the signalpath continues strictly digital. The PSU is completely external.

For our test we have decided for the classic, smallest possible constellation: One pre-amp and two mono blocks.

Who picks up the screwdriver and looks inside will be astonished: are those valve tubes? You can find two in the pre-amp and one ECC88 in each poweramp. Both are hybrids. The pre-amp follows a classic single-ended-class-A-circuitry, the monos combine the tubes with a class-D concept, so it's a digital amplifier. But at its best!

Who didn't understand the message yet: Those goodies produce audiophile sound way above their footprint. In our test we were baffled what kind of pressure those tiny boxes bring to loudspeakers. Add wonderfully handled dynamic shades to that. A very powerful, brave alternative to established designs.
